RE: Electric Service from Tri-County EMC to serve Cardinal Bay Subdivision on the Barren County side of Barren Reservoir

Gentlemen:

Before I purchased the above subdivision which is made up of two older subdivisions (Runaway Bay and Walnut Creek) plus another tract I added to the whole and all being now called "Cardinal Bay" I was advised by the officials at Tri-County EMC which serves electric utilities to that area that they would serve any homes constructed without any charges for line extension/construction for reaching the homes. I thereafter purchased the the subdivision on the strength of this representation.

When I had the first home built there, Tri-County then refused services unless payment was made to them for payment of all extensions necessary at $1.00 per foot for all exceeding 1000 feet from their existing facilities. There was even a lawsuit over their non-service by a lot owner against a seller because Tri-County refused to serve a home.

Now a lot owner has constructed a home on one of the lots and Tri-County advises that they will not provide electric service unless payment is made to them for all actual construction labor and materials regardless of distance except they will provide a meter pole and wire for the house if we pay them a flat $100.00. They no longer will even extend 1000 feet without all costs being paid by a consumer.

When we paid the first fee amounting to approximately $3000.00 for that first house we were advised if others built in the area within the next 10 years, we would get our money back, however they now say under the present set-up we recover absolutely nothing if we pay for an extension and thereafter others build along the same line.

I understand that Tri-County is a Tennessee utility but that Kentucky Utilities in the area do not charge this much or fail to allow the 1000 foot free extension to serve a new home. Why do we allow a Tennessee company to do this?

Please advise me what your official tariffs allow Tri-County to charge under my circumstances and location.

Thanking you in advance for this information,
I am

Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. Smither:

We have talked with Mr. Howard in the past and have stated our policies and given him copies of same. Enclosed is a copy of the contract which was for line extension into Cardinal Bay Subdivision.

On the location in question, Mr. James Gann has made application for service in our Scottsville, Kentucky office. He had also paid $100 which is for a meter pole to a trailer located on this lot to be used as a summer home.

It is the Board's desire to follow the Energy Regulatory Commission's ruling to the letter and to provide service to all customers at the lowest cost. In line with this, we will serve any person that makes application for service.

In accordance with the Commission, we will serve any permanent residence free for the first 1500 feet and then bill for all non-recoverable cost above that. On all non-permanent residences, summer homes, barns and etc., we ask for payment of all non-recoverable cost. The Policy is the same for development of private property. It is the Board's feeling that the people on fixed income, poor, and the elderly should not have to pay for these developments and summer homes.

As stated above, Mr. Gann has made application for service to a trailer and made no effort to develop this into a permanent residence. It is our understanding that this is a summer home to be used two or three months a year.
